P R E F A C E.

I LONG had in contemplation the utility of a work of this kind, and had set about collecting materials for carrying it into effect, when I accidentally cast my eyes on the Scots Magazine for 1786, where I found an undertaking of this kind highly recommended by Dr. Fothergill ; from that time I was more sedulous than ever, confident it would prove a source of valuable information and rational amusement. I now commit it to the public, conscious of meaning well, in presenting them with this trifle.

CHRISTIAN HOFFMAN.

LONGEVITY, &c.

IN a letter from Dr. ANTHONY FOTHERGILL to a friend, are the following remarkable instances of Longevity. See the Scots Magazine for 1786.

In the year of our Lord 76, in the reign of Vespasian, there was a taxing which afforded the most authentic method of knowing the ages of men. From it there were found in that part of Italy between the Appennine Mountains and the River Po, 124 persons who either equalled or exceeded 100 years of age, viz.

INSTANCE OF EXTREME OLD AGE.

Nunio de Kugna, aged 370, was born in the kingdom of Bengal in India, in the year 1196, and died in 1566.

MAFFEUS, who wrote the history of the Indies, which has been always esteemed a model of veracity, and an elegant composition, gives the following account, (Hist. Ind, lib. xi. cap. 4.) after having related the death of the sultan of Cambaya, and the conquest of his kingdom by the Portuguese.

“ They presented,” said he, “ at this time to the general, a man born among the ancient Gangards, now called Bengalers, who was three hundred and thirty-five years of age. There were various circumstances which took from this account all suspicion of falshood. In the first place his age was confirmed by universal tradition? all the people averring, that the oldest men in their infancy spoke of this man’s age with astonishment; and that he had then living in his own house, a son ninety years old. In the next place, his ignorance was so great, and he was so absolutely void of learning, that this removed all ground of doubt; for, by the strength of his memory; he was a kind of living chronicle, relating distinctly and exactly whatever had happened in the compass of his life, together with all the circumstances relating to it..

This wonderful man had often lost and renewed his teeth; his hair, both on his head and beard, grew insensibly grey, and then as insensibly turned black again. The first age of his life he passed in Idolatry; but during the two last centuries of his life, had regularly continued a Mahometan.— The sultan had allowed him a pension for.

his subsistence, the continuance of which he begged from the general ; the same motive remaining which had induced the king of Cambaya to grant him a subsistence, that is to say, his great age, and the extraordinary circumstances which had attended his life ; these prevailed on the general to grant his request." It may be very easily conceived, that so strange a story as the above, related by so faithful a historian, must have created many enquiries, and must have either sunk in the world, or, in consequence of those enquiries, received abundance of concurrent testimonies. We shall, therefore, add some farther remarkable particulars concerning this celebrated long liver, from another Portuguese writer, Ferdinard Lepoz de Castegneda, who was historiographer royal.

He says in his history of Lusitania, lib. viii. " In the year 1536, Nunio de Kugna was then 340 years of age, and was presented to the viceroy of the Indies. He remembered that he had seen the city in which he dwelt, then one of the most populous in the Indies, a very inconsiderable place. He had changed his hair, and recovered his teeth four times, and when the Viceroy saw him his head and beard were black, but the hair weak and thin. He asserted in the course of his life, he had 700 wives, some of whom died, and the rest he put away.

“ The king of Portugal caused a strict enquiry to be made into this matter, and an annual account of the state of the old man’s health to be brought him by the return of the fleet from India. This long lived person was a native of the kingdom of Bengal, and died at the age of three hundred and seventy.”

Saint Patrick died in Ireland, about the year of our Lord 490, aged 122 years.—He was born in Wales, was educated and ordained in Gaul, and began the conversion of Ireland about the year 432, and laboured in it until his death, in which time he constituted 355 churches, and at each ordained a sett of elders, with a bishop at their head. See the account of his life at large in Nonnius, and also in Keating, page 372, 348.—for extracts of which, see the sermon of the Rev. Ezra Stiles, D. D.—L. L. D. preached at Hartford, before his Excellency the Governor and the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut on the 8th of May, 1783.

Thomas Parr, of Shropshire, England, died November 16, 1635, aged 152 years. He lived in the reign of 10 kings—some time before his death he was sent for to court, on account of his extraordinary age, and was there handsomely provided for (being a man of narrow circumstances) but having been long accustomed to a country life, the change soon effected his death. Pennsylvania Magazine 1775.

Westminster Abbey—Thomas Parr of the county of Salop, born in 1483. He lived in the reign of 10 Princes, viz. Edward the 4th, King Edward the 5th, King Richard the 3d, King Henry the 7th, King Henry the 8th, King Edward the 6th, Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, King James, and King Charles, and was buried here November 15, 1635, aged 152 years. Hackett's Collection of Epitaphs.

William Sturt, of Patrington, England, aged 97, died in May 1685, and buried at Heydon, near Hull. See his tomb stone in Heydon Church yard: he had by his first wife 28 children, by his second 17, own father to 45, grand father to 86, great grand father to 97, and great great grand father to 23, in all 251. Annual Register for 1763.

James Bowels, aged 152, Killingworth, England, died in 1656. Scots Magazine for 1786.

J. Sages, aged 112, Lancashire, England, died in 1668. Scots Magazine for 1786.

Countess of Eggleston, aged 143, Ireland, died in 1691. Scots Magazine for 1786.

Henry Jenkins, aged 169, Yorkshire, England, died 8th December 1670. He is the greatest instance of Longevity ever known in England: in the early part of his life he was a soldier, and continued so according to some accounts to near his 70th year, after which he returned to Yorkshire, and supported himself for the last 100 years by fishing. Being subpoenaed as an evidence on a trial in chancery, he answered the following question. How long have you known the lands in dispute? Answer, upwards of 130 years. After his death a subscription was raised to defray the expence of a monument, which was erected at Allerton to the memory of so extraordinary a person, on which is an applicable inscription. Pennsylvania Magazine for 1775.

He lived to see all the troubles in England during the reigns of Henry 7th, Henry 8th, Edward 6th, Mary, Elizabeth, James 1st, Charles 1st, (time of the commonwealth, Oliver Cromwell, the various governments of his son Richard and during 13 years until 1661) when Charles 2d, was crowned, and died in the 8th year of Charles 2d reign, in the year 1670.—

His Wife, do. 120 } England, died in 1670. Scots Magazine for 1786.

Countess of Desmond, aged 140, Ireland, died in 1670. Scots Magazine for 1786.

Mr. Heyrie, aged 76, Leicestershire, England, died in 1689. London Magazine for 1752—He lived in one house with his wife 62 years, and in all that time buried neither man, woman, nor child, tho' they were sometimes 20 in family, and his widow who lived to be 97, saw before her death, of her children, grand children, and great grand children, to the number of 143. See epitaph in St. Martin's Church, Leicestershire.

John Bales, aged 126, Northampton, England, died April 5th, 1706. Scots Magazine for the year 1786.

George Stanley, aged 151, Homington, near Salisbury, England, died in 1719 — Upon a black marble slab in the chancel of Homington Church is an inscription to his memory, which mentions his age, and the time of his death. London Magazine for 1778.

Mary Gore, aged 125 Dublin, Ireland, died in 1727. She was born in Colling-worth, in Yorkshire, England, lived 100 years in Ireland, and died in Dublin. See New-York Daily Advertiser, July 16, 1786.

John Rooin, aged 172 } In the Banet
His wife do. 164 } of Temeswar,
Hungary. London Magazine for 1756.
It does not mention the time of their death.
They were married together 147 years, their youngest son being 90 at his father's death.

Peter Zorton, a peasant, aged 185. Keveresche, also in the Banet of Temeswar. He fed only on pulse. The youngest of his children at the father's death, was 97 years old.—This account of John Room and his wife, and Peter Zorton, is given by M. le Cat. of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Rhovan, and Fellow of the Royal Society at London; he saw at Brussels the full length portraits of all three, and a succinct history of them in Prince Charles's Library. See London Magazine for 1756.

William Wakely, aged 124. Jafal, alias Shesnal, England, died November, 1714. Upon a small board, in Shesnal Church, Shropshire, is the following inscription.—William Wakely was baptized at Jafal, alias Shesnal, May 1st, 1590, and buried at Ad Caston, November the 28th. 1714: his age was upwards of 124 years. He lived in the reign of 8 kings and queens. P. D. London General Magazine for 1773.

William Leland, Gent. aged 140, Liffnashea, Ireland, died in 1732. He was born at Warrington, in England, in 1593, and perfectly remembered the coronation of king James the first—he was prodigious tall and big-bon'd. London Magazine, or Gentleman's Monthly Intelligencer, for 1732. page 490.

Mrs. Carney a Roman Catholic maiden lady, aged 110. near Red Lion Square, London; died in 1733. London Magazine for 1733.

The oldest pensioner in Chelsea College, aged 115. London, died in 1733. He had served the crown upwards of 80 years, and signalised himself at Edge Hill fight, against the Parliament party; was also in all the wars in Ireland under king William, and also under the duke of Marlborough, thro' all his campaigns in Flanders, and was admitted a pensioner the same year the treaty of peace was concluded at Utrecht. London Magazine for 1733.

Mr. Truls, aged 112, Clay-Hill, near Enfield, England, died in 1733. He was a soldier in Oliver Cromwell's army. London Magazine for 1733.

—— Gundy, Esq. aged 116, near Hyde Park, London; died in 1733. He was reputed worth upwards of 100,000 pounds. London Magazine for 1733.

A woman, aged 102, Rheims, France, died in 1735. She had had nine husbands and bred up 26 children; she was attended to the grave by 153 sons, grandsons, and great grandsons, many of the former going upon crutches, or lead along blind, and borne down with the weight of old age. She had herself 8 brothers and 13 sisters, who had so numerous a posterity, that the old woman was aunt and great aunt to upwards of 1000 people. London Magazine for 1735.

Mary Patten, aged 138, London; died in 1738. In 1737 she sat down (by order of the chief officers of the parish of St. Margarets, Westminster, to which workhouse she then belonged) for her picture to be drawn, in order to be hung up in said workhouse. She was very hearty, walked about, and her only food was milk. London Magazine for 1738.

James Littlejohn, aged 118, Parish of Mochrum, Gallowayshire, Scotland, died in 1741. He retained his senses to the last, had seen king Charles the first, and Oliver Cromwell in Scotland, and described them very justly. London Magazine for 1741.

——— Ligoy, aged 120, Clermont, France, died in 1741. London Magazine for 1741.

John Philips, aged 117, Thomer, near Leeds, Yorkshire, England; died in 1742. He was born at Carlton, near Stockley, July 8th, 1625, the first year of king Charles the first, and lived in the reign of 8 kings and queens; he walked about to his dying day, his teeth were good, as was also his hearing, his sight tolerable, and he was so brisk and active, as to resolve to have gone to York, and poll for Mr. Fox at the election.

—— Matthews, aged 120, Braganza, Portugal, died 1741. Gentleman's London Magazine for 1741.

Shadrach Johnson, Bedford, England; died in 1741. He had by his first wife, aged 38, twelve sons and twelve daughters, and by another, 8 sons and daughters.

Francis Puidigo, the old Greek, aged 114 years and 6 months, Jamaica, West Indies, died in 1743. He was there at the conquest of the island, in the time of Oliver Cromwell, an extraordinary length of life for that or any other climate. He must have seen twelve generations or setts of inhabitants, for it is computed they bury a number equal to the whole island, every 7 years. London Magazine, for 1743.

Manuel Simones Baretto, aged 112, Coutrel, near Lisbon, kingdom of Portugal, died in 1743. London Magazine for 1743.

Isabella Brans, aged 112, Workhouse of St. Botolph, Aldersgate, London, living June 13, 1759. She was born at Aberdeen, Scotland, has the perfect use of all her senses, never used spectacles, and can read very small print. She worked for her bread till she was upwards of 110, has none of the infirmities which are the usual attendants of old age; was in her youth a very fine woman, and has still the remains of it: has a flow of spirits which perhaps none of her age ever had, and is still cheerful and hearty, nature in her seeming far from being exhausted. She has had 18 children by 2 husbands, has had many fits of illness, but is now in perfect health, and can walk four or five miles, better than most women of 60. London Magazine for 1759.

James Lhiele, aged 136, Ireland, died in 1759. London Magazine for 1759.

Edward Murphy, aged 110, Barr, King's county, Ireland, died in 1759. Annual Register for 1759.

Janet Cameron, aged 80, Invormorrison, died in 1759. Her funeral was attended by her children, grandchildren, great grandchildren, and great great grand children, to the number of 200.

Janet Blair, aged 112, Monimusk, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, died in 1759. Annual Register for 1759.

Samuel Cox, aged 93, } died in 1759.
 His wife, do. 99, } living in do.
 Hanslope, Bucks, England. They had been married 70 years, and their children, grand children, and great grand children, amount to 153. Annual Register for 1759.

Robert Mitchel, aged 88, Saddale, Argyleshire, Scotland, living in 1759. He has in life, of children, grand children, and great grand children 200. He walks from Saddale to Cambeltown, which is 8 miles, does business, and returns at night. London Magazine for 1759.

A man, aged 115, Pomerania, Upper Saxony, Germany, died in 1759. Annual Register for 1760.

12 Persons, aged together 1018, Ripley, Surry, England, living in 1759. At an entertainment given by the master of the Talbot Inn, at Ripley, in Surry, there were present 12 neighbours, whose ages together made 1018 years; among whom was the mother of 12 children, the youngest 60. London Magazine for 1759.

Patrick O'Neil, aged 113, Connell, county of Tipperary, Ireland, living in 1760. He was born in the year 1647, and has been married seven times; he was married to his first wife August 18th 1675. to his second July 9th 1684. to his third May 4th 1689, to his 4th March 8th 1701, to his fifth June 5th 1720, to his sixth October 9th 1740, and to his seventh, who is of the family of the O Connor's, September 14th, 1760. He enlisted for a dragoon in the 17th year of Charles II. and continued serving their successive majesties till the year 1740, when he was discharged; having been in all the battles, sieges, and skirmishes with King William and the Duke of Marlborough. It is remarkable that this man never drank any thing stronger than plain ale, never eat meat but when he chose to feast his family, living mostly on vegetables, rising and going to bed with the sun unless his duty prevented it—he is now in perfect health, his understanding sound, and walks without the help of a crutch or stick, and though he has arrived to this great age, he never knew an hour's illness, and goes on Sundays with his children, grand children, and great grandchildren, to his Parish Church. London Annual Register for 1760.

John Angas, aged 140, between Broad-Creek and the head of Wiefmoco River, formerly in the state of Maryland, now of the territory of Pennsylvania, died about the year 1770. Altho' this amazing age may appear extraordinary, it is agreeable to his own account, which his neighbours firmly believe from the tradition of their fathers. He had been totally blind with age some years before his death, he has left a son aged about 80 or more, who is already a great grand father; yet more hale, lively and active than most men in their prime, and has no grey hairs. Both he and his father were of lean constitutions, and lived poor and sparingly; that is, on simple and natural food. while the pure moisture of the soil prevented the pestilential nervous or putrid fevers and fluxes, so often epidemical and fatal in high and dry grounds, in these warm climates. Pennsylvania Magazine for 1775.

James Hearney, aged 115, Ireland, died in 1770. Scots Magazine for 1770.

Mrs. Windimore, whose maiden name was Hyde, aged 106, Westminster, England, living in 1770. She is now in Lady Dacre's alms-house—she was grand daughter to Dr. Hyde, bishop of Salisbury, brother to the great Lord Chancellor Hyde, Earl of Clarendon; and lost her fortune in the South Sea, year 1720. She is also a distant cousin of their late majesties queen Mary and queen Ann, whose mother was lady Ann Hyde, dutchess of York, whose royal consort was afterwards king James. 2d—a lively instance of the mutability of all worldly things: that a person related to two crowned heads, should by a strange caprice of fortune be reduced to live in an alms-house. She retains her senses in a tolerable degree, and her principal complaint is that she has outlived all her friends. London Town and Country Magazine for 1770.

The Emperor of Japan, aged 92, at Japan, died in 1770. He did not marry till the age of 75, when he took a woman of common rank, by whom he had a son now 15 years of age. London Town and Country Magazine for 1770.

Jonas Berry, aged 112, London, died in 1770. He was faddler to queen Ann. Scots Magazine for 1770.

John Taylor, aged 133, near Lead-hills, Scotland, died in May 1770. He was born in Carrygill, county of Cumberland, and was bred a miner. His father dying when John was only 4 years old, poverty obliged him to set early to work, during 2 years he dressed lead ore for two pence a day; the next 3 or 4 years he assisted the miners in removing the ore and rubbish to the bank, for which he received four pence a day, at this period there happened a great Solar Eclipse, which was distinguished in Scotland by the appellation of Mirk Monday, (Mirk in the Scottish dialect signifies dark, the eclipse happened in 1652) this event which he always repeated with the same circumstances, is the chief æra from whence John's age has been computed. After labouring many years both in this and the neighbouring kingdom he died near Lead-hills, Scotland, in May 1770, aged 133. William Smellie's Philosophy of Natural History, page 452.

William Morton, aged 179, Dalzell, near Hamilton, Scotland, died in 1771. It is remarkable that several years before his death, he ordered one Archibald Brownlie a carpenter, to make his coffin, and to prove his affection, he would never sleep without it was placed on the top of his bed—his dog named Barti, assisted at the funeral, which brought his grey hairs with sorrow to the grave. New-York Daily Advertiser for June 16th 1786.

Louisa Truxo, aged 175, Tucuman, South America, living October 5th, 1780. Cordova in the Tucuman, June 1st, 1779. In the village of Altagratia there lives a negro woman, who, according to the most authentic information and testimonies taken judicially, must be about 175 years old. She is extremely thin, very much wrinkled, and is bent double, but she can see at a few paces distance, and spins; but what is most extraordinary, though she cannot stand for any space of time, she still carries on the business of a midwife with dexterity. She had 5 children by her husband, one Michael, a Negro, and she thinks her grand children have grand children of their own. Old people seem to be no rarity in that country, as there are several negroes upwards of 100 years old, and one woman 120, who retains her memory perfectly, and declares that the old woman in question had arrived at woman's estate, when she first had the use of her reason. A man might reach the Sun if he would travel at the same rate, in 14,490 years. Boston Magazine for 1786.

Rebecca Ladd, Beddeford, Massachusetts, died in 1786. She had 10 children 3 of whom are alive, 48 grand children 33 of whom are alive, 82 great grand children 70 of whom are alive, 4 great great grand children all alive; in all 144, 110 living. Boston Magazine for 1786.

— Browne, aged 108, Hastings, Suffex, England, living in 1787. He buried his wife some years ago, at the age of 98, by whom he had 24 children. all twins, 16 of these were sons, and the rest daughters; 22 of his children are now at home with him; he is 6 feet 2 inches in height, and is withal lusty. He rode from Hastings to London, which is 63 miles, about 10 weeks ago in one day, upon a horse that he had kept for his own riding; these 20 years past. He has lived a life of intemperance for the last 50 years; having scarcely ever gone to bed sober, and one son follows his steps, having for these 15 years not been free from intoxication in the evening. He always brought his children up to industry, and if he found any of them averse to work, he sent them to sea. There were two of them of this disposition, whom he sent on board the Royal George which was lost, but they were both preserved by swimming upon a plank. The youngest of the 24 children is upwards of 50 years of age; he was married and had 8 children, who were all likewise twins, but who, with the wife, died within the space of 5 years. London Town and Country Magazine, for 1787.
